Hyphens

These are used to add something into a sentence, in a similar way to brackets.

The man- looking like he was about to keel over with boredom- waited for the bus.

They are most useful when you wish to go off subject slightly but then return to the original sentence.

They can also be used to add an informal comment on to the end of a sentence.

He leaned in and tried to kiss me- gross!

I couldn't take a single minute more- utterly ridiculous.
